OUTLOOK IN RUSSIA FAST GROWS WORSE

Thousands of Released Prisoners, Mostly German, Increase Menace.

Railway Minister Says Passenger Traffic Must Stop if Foods Are to Move.

LONDON, Feb. 6 .- Conditions in Russia are becoming more serious every day, and there is no reason to expect any im-mediate change, according to advices from a number of authentic sources. The economic situation of the former empire is especially critical. In addition, empire is especially critical. In addition, the released prisoners of war constitute an ever increasing menace. The prisoners, largely Germans, are being liberated by the thousands. Most of them at once start for Petrograd. There are said to be 40.000 in the capital.

M. Shliapnikoff, the Commissioner of Labor, told the Associated Press correspondent in Petrograd to-day that the causes of Russia's plight are universal, adding: "You probably know them as well as I do, and there is no need to enlarge upon them."

"We are going through the transition period from war to peace," continued the

Luxuries Being Limited.

There was unevenness of production even in the branch of industry making munitions of war, there being too much produced of some articles and too little of others. The first measure weare taking is to cut down the manufacture of other than necessary things and to produce useful articles, those we need most, such as locomotives, cars and automobiles. Thousands of locomotives are tadly in need of repair, but there are no shops for that work, as they all have been turned into munition factories. turned into munition factories are being turned back to their

These are being turned back to their original purpose."

Asked to what extent unemployment prevailed in Russia, the Commissioner of Labor replied:

"Of course unemployment is considerable, but it is difficult to give the number of the unemployed. The army demobilisation is increasing their number, but only temporarily, as most of the soliciers are returning to the villages, where they will take up the lands.

they will take up the lands.
"In a worse plight are the unemployed among the educated, tens of thousands of them, mostly officials, bank clerks and of them, mostly officials, bank clerks and others who considered themselves above the working class and do not like physi-al labor. The Ministry of Industry, for instance, employed 1,200 officials, while at present it has only 300 employed and

Work Day Is Shortened.

"To solve the unemployment problem we are organizing public works, such is sanitation work, building construc-tion, woodcutting, peat digging, &c." As to the hours of work and the pay of laborers the Labor Commissioner gave

The working period is eight hours for physical laborers and six hours for those engaged in office work. The laborers are paid by the hour and the office workers receive their pay monthly. The average wage at the Putiloff factory (the big munition works in Petrograd) is 1 ruble 80 kopecs an hour. It employs 18,000 persons, the force having been reduced from 32,000 because of lack of fuel, as well as from the partial stoppage of the production of munitions. Most of the factories which closed in becember because of the fuel shortage ber because of the fuel shortage

With regard to the effect of the fin-

The effect is most beneficial. It increases production. For instance, we nationalised all the Ural factories and the conference of representatives now meeting in Petrograd reports that the productivity of labor there has already increased up to 300 per cent. There is a physiological reason for this. The workmen realise that they are working for themselves and for their country, and that they are not being exploited. and that they are not being exploited for private gain. That is a great stimu-

We do not, however, mean to nation alize all the industries right now. We only wish to regulate them and make impossible such things as the capitalists impossible such things as the capitalists add in seising millions of yards of cleth while the people went naked. We shall not confiscate factories, and we shall even let owners use their own initiative so long as they do not oppose our control and operate in harmony with our seneral industrial policies."

Hearded Stores Confiscated.

The search for food conducted by the cishevik authorities in Petrograd declosed nearly 100,000 pounds of butter, which had been hoarded by speculators. The authorities also found 150 carloads of matches, 150,000 gallons of kerosene and large quantities of meat, potatoes, peas, fats and soap. One speculator had $.000 pairs of children's shoes.

An official Russian wireless despatch contains a declaration by Lettish representatives from the Lettish councils of Socialists and Soldiers protesting against the assertion of the Austro-German delegation at Brest-Litowsk that the Letts had expressed a desire for separation from Russia. The demand is expressed that the German and Russian forces be withdrawn from the Lettish territory so that the shabitants can express freely their will for unconditional unity and undivided existence.

A declaration similar to that made by the Letts has been issued by the Esthonians. It demands full and unfestered self-determination for the whole of Esthonia, including Oesel, Dago and the neighboring islands inhabited by Bethonians.

Special Cable Despatch to Tan Sux from the Bondon Times.

Copyright, 1918; all rights reserved. PARIS, Feb. 6 .- The Bolo case is so applicated any attempt to describe the trial of the alleged French traitor in logical sequence is impossible. One moment the Pasha is talking Venezuela: the next, in patronizing and pitying tones, is giving the court a short lecture on American finance or protesting against the evidence of Von Bernstorff and Von Jagow being believed in preference to his own testimony.

All through the grim questioning, how demand for precise information as to how Bolo became possessed, in less than two years, of more than 10,000,000 francs, and why he remained, after the outbreak of the war, in continued correspondence with enemies of his country. What led him to transfer from Germany to America the big sums to his credit in the banks of the former country is another problem of increasing interest.

Bolo is never at a loss for a reply. His intimacy with the former Khedive? Why, everybody knew about it, Poincare, Delcasse, the British Ambassador. If there was anything wrong in it why did not one of them speak?

According to him, Von Bernstorff, Von Jagow and especially the German banker Pavenstedt indulged in wholesale forgery in order to attain their ends. "Come, now, gentlemen," says Bolo, "you cannot really believe the evidence of men who are nothing but small German spies."

His pre-war fortune of 2,000,000 francs was divided between Hamburg and Antwerp, Bolo explained, and was transferred to the Amsinck Yank in 1916 by the Deutsche Bank, and these two millions had borne fruit. "More than eight millions profit on

Smilingly and persuasively Bolo said:
"Yes, I told the bank to invest at par in

"Have you any record of these two millions you say you had at Antwerp and Hamburg before the war?"
"No, nothing," said Bolo promptly.
"and for the very ample reason that

Then, with a prids he took no pains to conceal. Bolo pointed out that the great expert Doyen himself had been able to establish that Bolo spent large sums of money, but had been unable to establish the sources of his income, so clever had Bolo been.

Bolo's smile faded away when M. Mo-rent announced that the prosecution in-tended to prove his income was nothing tended to prove his ince ulation and had been living at the rate of 49,000 a year. The commissions he claims to have made were fantastic, the expert testified.

Once again Bolo was called upon to show any papers he might have tending to prove he had made large sums of money, and once again he explained that he treated mere matters of millions with magnificent indifference, as though he were a Monte Cristo, and that as he dealt only with the Government's very biggest institutions he always received his profits in hard cash. M. Casella, a newspaper writer, testified as to how Bolo Pasha obtained the confidence of Sadik Pasha, chief of the Egyptian Cabinet under Hilmi Pasha, the former Khedive. Sadik Pasha, the witness said, was invited to dinner with many other notables, and at this function Bolo Pasha displayed intimate friendship with Fernand Monler, expression of the Paris Court of Appeals, and Louis J. Malvy, formerly French Minister of the Interior.

One of the pet projects of Bolo, the witness said, was to organise a Catholic bank, with the late Marquis Jules della Chiesa, a brother of Pope Benedict, and the ex-Khedive of Egypt at its head, and which was to have for its purpose, he asserted, the drawing together of France and Germany.

London, Feb. 6.—British officials, both political and military, decline to accept the French interpretation of the work of the interallied conference in Paris, suggesting that there is a veiled purpose to establish unanimity of command by practically if not nominally creating a Generalissimo.

These officials assert positively that the suggested unification of command has not proceeded beyond the measure taken at the Versailles council. They say the plan is impracticable because in the event of unfortunate results or disaster to the enemy in one country, for which the Generalissimo of another country possibly would be regarded as responsible, the sentimental effect would be serious.

In contradiction to the rumored iron hand methods of the Central Empires is a report to the effect that they are prepared to offer to restore Poland on terms satisfactory to Russia in order to bring about a quick peace. The Berlin correspondent of the Neueste Nachrichten of Munich says the prospects of peace with Russia now are considered much more slender than formerly.

From Swiss sources information reaching London says Berlin is considering seriously the abandonment of the Brest negotiations. The North German Garette, referring to this possibility, says:

Gazette, referring to this possibility, says:

"The situation requires to be cleared soon by the concentration of troops now taking place. Russia and Bessarabia are not harmonious with the spirit of the armistice." The foregoing may refer to the concentration of Russian troops made necessary by internal disorders, but which also constitutes a threat that Russia really is prepared to violate the armistice and resume hos-tilities.

If the negotiations fail there reason to believe Germany will resume operations against Russia at once. One Berim paper significantly asserts: "Further adjournment of the Brest pourparlers would place us in a good position to settle satisfactorily the relations between the Baltic provinces and Germany without further delay."

Some Continental diplomatic circles claim to be in receipt of advices showing that the German higher authorities, political and military, seriously are considering sending an ultimatum to the Bolsheviki insisting upon immediate peace, and that in the event of refusal there will be a spring march on Petrograd by German troops which have been concentrated behind the Russian nont for this purpose.

concentrated behind the Russian mont for this purpose.

Various Government inspired German papers suddenly are assuming a threatening attitude, intimating that military activity against Russia will be necessary shortly unless the Bolsheviki yield. The sudden outcropping of such reports causes much mystification regarding German plans. Inquiry is being made as to witether it is possible that while Germany has been noisily proclaiming a proposed great offensive in the west she did not intend such operations at all, but really had in view a renewal of operations against Russia.
